

Editorial

It gives me immense pleasure to begin a new era of publishing a journal, 'INTROSPECT' from our college. As the title suggests, we, the teachers, being the pillars of the society have the tremendous responsibility to question our own thinking, to enrich our knowledge and to progress logically and scientifically. However, many a times, several small yet innovative and powerful ideas from the college desk do not get a proper platform to get noticed and analyzed. I sincerely hope that INTROSPECT will serve as the communication podium to express such marvelous thoughts and ideas to the larger communities of the learning and the learned.

INTROSPECT is a peer reviewed journal. In the age of fast media and continuous fear of plagiarism, it is of utmost importance, that we review every article to assess its quality, validity, and often the originality of the articles before presentation to the community of critics and readers. Therefore, we have also formed an expert reviewers' panel for different subjects to scrutinize an article and at the same time enrich its quality by their adept opinion. I am immensely grateful to all the reviewers for finding out spare time out of their busy schedule.

I am indebted to Dr. Santiranjana Palchaudhuri, Principal, Sammilani Mahavidyalaya, for his encouragement and continuous support towards the publication of the first issue of INTROSPECT, without whom the journal would have never been a reality. I, on behalf of the editorial board, take this opportunity to give special thanks to all the authors who have enriched the content of the journal by contributing their valuable writings and articles on their research work. My thanks are also to all the teaching faculties and non-teaching members of the college for their utmost cooperation in all possible ways.

Lastly, we further look forward to all the scholars and academicians for their contributions, suggestions and feedbacks, which would enable us to attain greater heights. I sincerely hope that we will be able to maintain this endeavor and carry out the immense task of imbibing knowledge and dispersion of information.

Dr. Susmita Mondal

Editor, Introspect

Assistant Professor, Department of Microbiology

Sammilani Mahavidyalaya